“ I know this is normally a time of preparation for the annual celebration of your birthday Miss Emily. It has taken me this long to even read the announcement of your celebration of life as you were one of Elizabeth's childhood besties. When our children bond with their friends, their parents also bond with them and when they are diagnosed with cancer, as my other daughter's best friend, or they past through this world way too quickly, I feel that I too am losing a friend, a daughter, a playmate. My heart breaks for your mothers, your siblings, my daughters, and my heart breaks for me as I picture myself possibly going through that myself first hand some day feeling the anguish, the pain, the helplessness, and complete devastation of my world on a level that only a mother can feel. That's when I pray for your mother, Lucy, to be given the strength and the peace that can only come from a Devine intervention. Because without that, her life would be unbearable. I know Elizabeth misses you very much and has wanted to talk about you and look at old photos of the two of you. I'm sure everyone who ever knew you wishes you were still here. God's plans make a lot more sense than ours. I just wish he would reveal them to us in order to put our earthly hearts and minds at rest and make it easier to accept.

“ My beautiful baby sister... One of my favorite memories of you was when we were at Carlie's graduation party. You were so excited about your new niece or nephew that's on the way. You kept rubbing my belly and talking about how you couldn't wait to meet him or her. Well we found out yesterday it's a healthy baby boy. I know you would have been so excited! Love you baby girl and I miss you more than words could ever say!!! Fly high princess!

“ When I met Lyn she was pregnant with Emily and I remember the day that she was born. I have been blessed to be a part of this family for that long. Blessed to watch Emily grow into a beautiful young lady inside and out. I know that she is in a better place now where she knows no more pain no sorrow and surround by people that love her. I pray for peace to be with you all as we go through saying good bye.
